Special Collections

In the book, Fluffy surprises his family with a collection of casts, wraps, and other types of casings. Fluffy is proud of his collection because it represents his important role as the family doctor. He takes care of all his humans.

Do you have any special collections?

If so...

- What do you collect, and why is it important to you?
- How did your collection begin?
- What was the first object in your collection (if you remember)?
- Where do you store your collection?
- How do you gather more objects to add to your collection?

If not... Imagine you start one!

- What would you like to collect and why?
- What are the different types of objects you could include in such a collection (for instance, types of rocks or baseball cards for different players)?
- How could you store or display your collection?
- How might you get more objects to add to your collection?
